Gwyneth Paltrow

RAISES A STINK!

Beauty
GETS

for all the wrong
reasons

GWYNETH PALTROW may be the "World's Most Beautiful Woman," but she sure doesn't smell like it! The Oscar winner had terrible body odor at New York's Met Ball on May 6, an eyewitness told The ENQUIRER – but no one at the swanky red-carpet event had the guts to tell her.

"Poor Gwyneth looked picture-perfect, but it must have been the hot lights that caused her to be a little strong on the nose," said a source, who got a little too close to the blonde beauty.

"It was pretty pungent, and I don't think she had a clue. I saw at least two people wave their hands in front of their noses after passing her."

A close friend of the actress insists the 40-year-old "Iron Man" star isn't usually a stinker, but admits that sometimes Gwyneth – like other celebs – does have problems with excessive sweating when she's under the glare of strong lighting.

AND MAKING MATTERS WORSE, HEALTH-CONSCIOUS

Gwyneth refuses to use deodorant with aluminum, opting for more natural – and often less effective – solutions.

"Gwyneth has heard that aluminum is supposedly carcinogenic, and that putting an aluminum-based deodorant directly on those sensitive armpit glands can increase the chances of breast cancer," the friend explained.

But the problem with less toxic alternatives – like crystal rock deodorant, which is made from mineral salts – is that they tend not to work as well.

"If she's trying out new deodorants, she's bound to fail with some of them," added the friend. "But Gwyneth tells pals she'd rather be smelly than dead."

SHIRLEY MACLAINE has let her front yard go to the dogs – literally – and one of her neighbors is howling mad!

The neighbor claims that the 79-year-old Oscar winner has violated the rules of the homeowners' association at her ritzy gated townhouse community for the love of her rat terriers, Terry and Buddy-Bub.

"Shirley's dogs bark constantly!" the neighbor in Malibu told The ENQUIRER.

"I've been annoyed about it for some time, but Shirley really crossed the line when she set up a make-shift 'dog run' area in front of her door.

"That's a direct violation of the homeowners' association rules, but for some reason she's been given an exemption. For everyone else, the rules prohibit any pets from being outside and unattended."

The "Terms of Endearment" star is so attached to her older pooch Terry that she's called the tail-wagger the "love of her life." But the neighbor isn't as warm and fuzzy about the dog. "I'm pursuing my complaint, and the matter will be decided at the next board meeting," huffed the neighbor.

WHEN THE ENQUIRER ASKED SHIRLEY'S camp for a comment, we received the following response: "(Our neighbor) is the only one in the HOA who is mad at us. That's because we bark when he comes close to take pictures of our mom. And we don't have a dog run, but we would like to build one and put him in it and chase him around. He is not a loving man. He is a jerk that no one in our HOA likes. Please ask him not to hurt us. Signed, Terry and Brother Buddy-Bub MacLaine."

KIM'S $1M DIVA DELIVERY

Reality sexpot SPLURGING LIKE CRAZY ON BIRTH

NOTHING is too good for Kim Kardashian's new baby – and the reality-show diva is sparing no expense for the upcoming delivery.

In fact, a source says the tab for the birth may top one MILLION dollars!

"This is not going to be just any delivery, even by celebrity standards," a source told The ENQUIRER. "Kim has already spent tens of thousands of dollars to make sure things go down without a glitch."

According to the source, Kim – whose baby with Kanye West is expected to arrive in July – has spent the past three months planning every detail of the birth.

SHE'S HIRED A TOP PHOTOGRAPHER

to document the delivery and her first week as a new mom – at a cost of $1,000 a day. And she and Kanye are also planning to dish out more than $4,000 per day for a deluxe birthing suite at L.A.'s Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where Kim is expected to spend at least three days.

The posh maternity suite features a full-size soaking tub, two beds, a separate sitting room with a sofa and dining table, a flat-screen TV, a fridge stocked with juices, water and food, and two bathrooms. If that weren't

Kim is expecting a huge reward for all the months she spent with a massive baby belly enough, Kim, 32, is spending thousands to have the suite blanketed in dozens of white roses. And although the new parents will receive three gourmet meals daily, Kim's put some of her favorite restaurants – like Ruth's Chris Steak House, and her local deli, Cuvee – on call for the duration of her stay.

In addition to the deluxe digs, the couple spent $25,000 on lingerie while they were in Paris last month, because Kim "had no intention of wearing a plain old hospital gown that's been worn by other women," the source said.

Kim and Kanye are expecting in July

She also shelled out a small fortune on organic clothes and sheet sets for the baby. Her favorite boutique? L.A.'s The Little Seed, owned by former "Punky Brewster" star Soleil Moon Frye.

Kim's booked her favorite hairdresser, Scott Cunha from the Andy LeCompte Salon in West Hollywood, to keep her perfectly coiffed – at a rate of $1,500 per day for three days.

The couple also dropped $1,500 on a top-of-the-line Orbit Baby stroller/car seat system to make sure their bundle of joy leaves the hospital in style.

BUT IT'S KIM'S "PUSH PRESENT" – a gift a woman gets from her partner for pushing the baby out – that may send the total cost into the seven-figure range.

Mariah Carey got a $12,000 pink diamond necklace when she had twins Monroe and Moroccan two years ago, and Jennifer Lopez received a Canary diamond ring and matching earrings worth $2.5 million after the 2008 birth of twins Max and Emme.

"Kanye better have done his shopping," added the source. "Kim is expecting a huge reward for all the months she's spent with swollen feet, a big weight gain, morning sickness and a massive baby belly."

BRAD PITT's mother Jane secretly convinced Angelina Jolie to take the fateful test that led to her preventive double mastectomy – after the actress had been shaken by yet another close relative's cancer battle!

That's the hush-hush story behind the Hollywood family tragedy that's rocked America, sources say.

"Basically, Brad's mom helped save Angie's life," an insider told The ENQUIRER. "When Angie told Jane that she was considering having genetic testing, Jane said to do whatever she thought was best for the children's sake."

"That was all Angie had to hear. She made a decision right then and there to have it done!"

The heartfelt conversation unfolded while Brad's mom and dad Bill vacationed with the Jolie-Pitt clan during the Christmas holiday last year at designer Donna Karan's lavish home on Parrot Cay in the Turks & Caicos islands, according to the insider.

‘We’re so very proud of Angie. We love her dearly’

During their chat, the source says Jane encouraged 37-year-old Angelina – whose mother Marcheline died of ovarian cancer at 56 – to undergo the $3,000 test. Sadly, she did test positive and therefore carries the faulty BRCA1 gene, a marker for cancer of the breasts and ovaries, just like another close relative who's now fighting for her life (see The ENQUIRER's exclusive report on pages 34-35).

Jane confirmed the family get-together in an exclusive ENQUIRER interview, but modestly underplayed her role in the dramatic events.

"I ABSOLUTELY CANNOT TELL YOU what Angie and I discussed on the Turks and Caicos at Christmas," Jane – who has a children's cancer center named after her in her Springfield, Mo., hometown – told The ENQUIRER.

"That's private. I can only say we are very glad she had this done."

"We think it's a very good decision for the kids, for her, for the family. We are very happy that we feel now

In a statement released to other media, Jane said: "We're so very proud of Angie. This means so much to our family, especially our grandchildren. We love her dearly."

The Oscar-winning actress' older brother, James Haven, also spoke out about her decision to undergo the procedure.

"My sister, like our mother, always put her children first," he said in a statement. "I am so grateful to be her brother."

The "Salt" star, who also serves as a special envoy for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, announced she'd undergone the surgery after learning she carried the faulty BRCA1 gene. Her doctors estimated she had an 87 percent chance of contracting breast cancer and a 50 percent risk of ovarian cancer.

Cancer has stalked the maternal side of Angelina's family for decades – with her great-grandmother, grandmother, mother, grandfather, and uncle succumbing to the disease.

Now sources say she and Brad face the heartrending decision of when to tell their biological children – Shiloh, 7, and twins Knox and Vivienne, 4 – that they too, may carry the faulty gene.

The Hollywood A-listers are also parents of three adopted children – Maddox, 11, Pax, 9, and Zahara, 8.

“In discovering that she carries the faulty gene, Angie also learned she may have passed it along to her kids,” said a source close to her.

“She now has to decide when to tell Shiloh, Knox and Viv that they could carry this cancer gene as well.

“In Angie’s mind, it’s an even more painful decision than the one to have a double mastectomy.

“She’s trying to come to terms with it – and Brad is comforting her, saying, ‘We’ll tell Shiloh, Knox and Vivienne when they’re ready to know.’ But it’s hard for Angie to face the prospect.”

Experts aware of the situation but who have not treated Angelina were interviewed by The ENQUIRER and offered several suggestions on how she should discuss the potentially devastating medical news with her young children.

“The risk of developing cancer increases with age,” pointed out Dr. Herman Kattlove, retired oncologist and former spokesperson for the American Cancer Society.

“SO FOR BREAST CANCER, WOMEN IN their 30s who have the mutant BRCA1 gene need to be concerned.

“That being said, I think the children should be tested in their early 20s for the gene so that as young adults, they can make their own decisions. However, I think that they should be told about the possibility of having it even earlier.”

It’s also important for Angelina to explain her surgery to her children, added a top psychologist.

“I think she needs to discuss why she had a bilateral mastectomy, and respond if the children ask if it could happen to them,” Dr. Jack Singer, a licensed psychologist in California’s Orange County, told The ENQUIRER.

“My advice is the children need to be given answers that will make them feel safe, rather than answers that will frighten them.”

Dr. Gilda Carle, a psychotherapist and “30-Second Therapist” for Today.com, agreed.

“Angie’s children are too young to understand whether the gene can be passed on to them, and too young to cope with the possibility if it is,” Dr. Carle told The ENQUIRER.

“This knowledge would not benefit the children medically or psychologically until they’re older. If at all possible, parents should let children be children until they can cope with the tribulations of adulthood.”

Cruise's 'Mission' to make soccer pal AN ACTION HERO

AFTER hanging up his cleats, soccer superstar David Beckham is hoping to net a big movie career with help from his pal Tom Cruise!

The ENQUIRER has learned that Cruise once offered to turn the heartthrob athlete into a big-screen action hero – and now that Beckham has announced his retirement from the sporting life, a source says he's ready for Tom to make good on his promise.

Tom and then-wife Katie Holmes with David and Victoria

BECKHAM, 38, HAS BEEN COMMUTING between his Los Angeles home and Europe to fulfill a five-month soccer contract with the Paris Saint-Germain team, but the source says now that it's over he'll pursue his lifelong ambition to be an actor.

"David has always wanted to be an action film star, and Tom promised him a long time ago he can make those dreams come true," revealed an insider. "David still loves soccer but feels he's gone about as far as he can in the sport and that now is a great time to transition into film while he's still young enough to land top-notch roles."

The soccer icon and "Mission: Impossible" star met several years ago when David's wife, Spice Girl Victoria, began hanging out at fashion shows with Tom's then-wife Katie Holmes.

But the couple's friendship apparently ran into problems. "David and Victoria distanced themselves after Tom began trying to sell them on the idea of Scientology," said the insider. "But David still kept in touch with Tom and believes he'll stand by his promise to help him become an action star."

"Who knows? We could see David in 'Mission: Impossible 5.'"

TIGER WOODS' ex is so furious about the golfer's half-naked fishing outing with new girlfriend Lindsey Vonn that she's threatening to take him back to court!

As these eye-popping photos show, a shirtless Tiger, 37, and his scantily clad skiing sweetheart, 28, let it all hang out as they enjoyed the afternoon of May 14 aboard his 61-foot yacht, Solitude, off Jupiter Island, Fla. While ex-wife Elin Nordegren doesn't care who Tiger dates, she's livid because their kids — daughter Sam, 5, and son Charlie, 4 — were with him, a source says.

As part of their 2010 divorce, the couple agreed to keep the kiddies away from romantic partners AND publicity. Now, a source says Elin, 33, has ordered her attorneys to find out if Tiger's boating antics are grounds for an injunction.

"Elin's furious," the source told The ENQUIRER. "She feels Tiger is using their kids to repair his damaged image by appearing with them and Lindsey in a place where he knows photographs will be taken. She wants to get an injunction to prohibit Tiger from exposing the kids to any publicity, especially when he's with one of his girlfriends."

Elin was furious when she found out Lindsey took her kids to school on May 20

The ENQUIRER revealed his lurid affair with New York party girl Rachel Uchitel. Soon after, numerous other women came forward to say they'd also slept with the sex-crazed athlete.

ELIN IS CURRENTLY DATING mining billionaire Chris Cline and has bought a home in an exclusive gated community in an effort to maintain her kids' privacy and keep them out of the spotlight.

According to the source, Elin said: "It's bad enough that Tiger splashes his new relationship with Lindsey all over Facebook, but we had an agreement — no publicity with the kids and his girlfriends. Not only has he broken that agreement — they've hardly got any clothes on!"

Elin's fury received another boost when Lindsey was photographed taking the kids to school in North Palm Beach on May 20. "This is a complete violation of our divorce agreement," she raged to a source. "This has to stop!"

Added the source: "This could throw their whole divorce case back into the courts."

Said My SpyWitness: “The little girl gushed that she was a HUGE fan and just loved Mila’s movies. But Mila just stared with frosty eyes when the girl asked if she could take a photo with her. Without even giving her so much as a brief smile or thank you, Mila literally turned her back on the kid, whispered something to her friend and skated off. Then the friend told the girl, ‘Mila doesn’t want to be bothered, so don’t approach her, or speak to her, again.’ The kid turned beet red and began to tear up as she watched Mila skating around laughing with her friends!” (What a nasty...Kunis!)

Three women spent a decade enduring brutal rapes and beatings at the hands of monster Ariel Castro

THE last time Johnny Berry saw his daughter, she was a happy, carefree 16-year-old, working at Burger King and making good grades in high school.

Amanda Berry's next 10 years would be spent chained up and gagged in a rundown house of horrors on Cleveland's Seymour Avenue, allegedly suffering a decade of brutal rapes and beatings at the hands of accused kidnapper Ariel Castro.

"If I could get my hands on that monster Castro, I'd kill him myself!" Johnny, who lives in Elizabethton, Tenn., told The ENQUIRER in an exclusive interview. "I'd rip him to shreds!"

Prosecutors may seek the death penalty for Castro, but Johnny would rather see him rot behind bars.

"IF I CAN'T KILL HIM, I DON'T WANT the state to execute him," he said. "That would be too easy for him.

"I want him in prison for the rest of his life. I know people in there who can make his life a living hell for what he did to Amanda. I want them to beat the s out of him every single day."

Johnny, who told The ENQUIRER he served time for sexual battery and aggravated assault, says he's turned his life around. Near-paralyzed from recent back surgery, his voice raspy from deadly pulmonary disease, the frail 53-year-old worries that he won't live long enough to see Amanda again or get to hug his 6-year-old granddaughter, Jocelyn, who was born during Amanda's captivity.

But he's grateful he's been able to speak to Amanda twice since her miracle escape on May 6.

"When she called me, her voice was the most beautiful sound I ever heard," Johnny recalled. "She said, 'Hi, Daddy. I'm still alive. I love you, love you, love you!' We were both

"GAME of Thrones" star Gwendoline Christie plays a fearsome female warrior who can level anyone on a battlefield – but the 6-foot-3 actress was bullied mercilessly as a teen.

Nasty schoolmates in her English town treated her like a freak because she towered over them.

"Gwendoline was picked on like crazy," revealed an insider.

To escape her tormentors, she poured all her energy into becoming a rhythmic gymnast – until she strained the muscles around her spine. "When that happened, and I was told that I wouldn't be able to dance again at that level, I decided...I'd become an actress instead," Gwendoline told an interviewer.

WITH STEADFAST determination, she graduated from drama school in 2005 and appeared in productions of the Royal Shakespeare Company. And while her lofty physique was ridiculed by classmates when she was young, it helped land her the role of Brienne of Tarth on the hit HBO fantasy about seven families fighting for control of a mystical land.

In a bizarre twist, Gwendoline didn't know anything about the role until her name started popping up online when fans of the novel that inspired the series made casting suggestions.

"As soon as I read about this character and read about the part, I just wanted (it)," said the strapping actress. Her agent advised her not to take the role because it was too masculine, but Gwendoline went after it anyway, like a true warrior. To get ready for her audition, she made herself into a tower of power by embarking on a grueling regimen of kickboxing, boxing and yoga.

She also quit drinking, downed protein shakes and beefed up on lean red meat.

Still, the biggest challenge for the 33-year-old beauty was cutting off her long, curly blonde locks.

She admits it hurt her self-esteem, but now she says she has no regrets, declaring: "It's my dream job!"

NOW that Candice Glover has been crowned the new "American Idol" champ, she wants to start giving back to her community – by building a counseling center for young girls on South Carolina's St. Helena Island.

But that's not all: Candice also wants to buy her family – who currently live in a double-wide trailer – a new home.

"GROWING UP, Candice wrestled with self-esteem issues," said an insider. "She admits she was an incredibly shy and insecure person.

"She never felt she was pretty enough or thin enough as she struggled with her weight."

Candice wrestled with self-esteem issues. She admits she was an incredibly insecure person

The 23-year-old vocal powerhouse, who bested country singer Kree Harrison in an emotional finale May 16, has said the counseling she received at school changed her life.

Candice revealed that she had planned to become a guidance counselor after "Idol" ended, but now that she's won, the insider says "she realizes that's unrealistic."

For the next two months, Candice will be out on the "American Idol Live!" summer concert tour with the Top 11 finalists. She's also prepping for a July 16 release of her debut album, and her coronation song, "I Am Beautiful," is poised to become a hit.

"That song means a lot to her," said the source, "and she thinks it'll mean a lot to other young women."

Although Candice's career goals have been altered by her big win on "Idol," she still plans to be directly involved with mentoring young women by going "around the country speaking about self-esteem issues," added the insider.

Bighearted Candice also plans to use some of the money she'll be earning to buy her parents, Carole and John, a spacious and comfortable home to live in.

"Candice has six younger siblings and they need more room," the insider noted. "So she plans to get them new digs."

BRITNEY SPEARS has vowed not to waste a single minute on another dead-end relationship – and she's slapped new beau David Lucado with a baby and marriage ultimatum.

Incredibly, it worked!

Although they've been dating for less than three months, sources say David, 27, has given his pop sweetheart an informal engagement ring.

BRITNEY, 31, ANNOUNCED IN January that she and her agent, fiancé Jason Trawick, had split up. Although insiders say she's moved on, the "Scream & Shout" singer feels like she wasted nearly four years waiting for him to marry her and start a family.

"She refuses to fall into that trap again with her new guy," said a source. "Britney told David she wants a firm commitment that he wants to marry and give her a child – or get out of her life for good. To Britney's surprise, David presented her with a modest gold ring to prove he's totally committed to her."

In a recent interview with "Extra" host Mario Lopez, Britney didn't make any bones about her desire to have another child, declaring: "I want a baby girl."

Meanwhile, the former "X Factor"

The singer and former fiancé Jason judge was pictured in Thousand Oaks, Calif., on May 11 flaunting the ring. "David is planning a more formal engagement with Britney later this year, but he wanted to give her something now to show her he's in this relationship for the long haul," the source said.

Though a formal announcement has not yet been made, Britney is currently gearing up for a residency in Las Vegas, where she'll have recurring performances at Planet Hollywood. "Britney's new venture in Las Vegas could put her pregnancy plans on hold temporarily," the source added. "But she's already searching for a way to fit a husband and baby into her future."

MARIE'S SICK OF DONNY

After 37 years, she's READY TO DUMP BROTHER AND GO SOLO

The toothy twosome rocketed to fame with their TV variety show in the 1970s (far left), and have been performing a 90-minute stage show in Vegas since 2008

AFTER decades of performing as a duo, Marie Osmond is ready to dump brother Donny for good!

While she's still tied to her contract with Flamingo Las Vegas, where she and Donny have been performing a 90-minute stage show since 2008, once that's over Marie is ready to move on as a solo act, a source says.

"She loves her brother, but she can't take all the jealousy or his controlling nature," said a family insider.

THE TWO HAVE BEEN performing together since childhood and rocketed to fame with their brother-sister variety show in the 1970s. But Donny has admitted that they've always been fiercely competitive.

"To make the business work, we set (our) rivalries aside," he said in an interview last year.

But the insider notes that Donny's public stance doesn't hold true behind the scenes.

"Privately, it's a different matter," explained the source. "He's desperately wanted to make it on his own and has recently been talking about his own TV project, which he says is very close to happening."

Despite being a one-time teen idol, Donny, 55, subsequently struggled as a solo act and admitted on "Dr. Phil" that he's suffered from panic attacks. Meanwhile, his younger sister continues to thrive professionally. Marie, 53, is a successful talk-show host, author and dollmaker, and she's also been a pitchwoman for QVC and the diet plan NutriSystem. "Forbes" magazine places her fortune at more than $17 million.

"Marie doesn't need Donny as much as he needs her," said the insider. "But they still make a decent amount of money from their Vegas show and concert tours, which is why they re-upped their contract. But after that's done, she wants to move on."

The source added: "Marie has had it with Donny. She's tired of his attitude. She's got enough on her plate without him."

Barbara Walters has put together an amazing "to do" list for her retirement. Her top priority, says a source, is helping her troubled daughter – busted for drunk-driving recently. After that she wants to get married for the FOURTH time!

Days after the 83-year-old news legend announced the end of her long and illustrious TV career next summer, her 44-year-old adopted daughter Jacqueline Danforth was arrested for DUI in Naples, Florida.

A friend told THE ENQUIRER, "Barbara and Jackie have been at odds for years. Barbara has tried to bring the two closer and was shattered when she found out about Jackie's arrest.

"The first call Jackie made from jail was to her mom and Barbara promised to help her. This incident may be the spark that brings them closer."

The "20/20" co-host and creator of "The View" has been married three times and Jacqueline was adopted by Barbara and second husband Lee Guber in 1968. They divorced eight years later.

OFFICIAL MUG SHOT
Barbara's daughter Jacqueline Danforth busted for DUI

FOLLOWING TURBULENT TEENAGE YEARS, Jacqueline made a public vow to get her life back on track but her new problems come "at a time when her mother was looking forward to dramatically changing her own lifestyle" the source said.

"Barbara's fondest memories center around being in love and she wants to experience one last great romance," added the source. "She wants to feel that rush of passion again – and even get married!"

The bighearted broadcaster – who lost her sister Jackie to ovarian cancer in 1985 – also wants to spend more time working for the Ovarian Cancer Research Fund.

A huge fan of James Bond films, the former "Today" show host once fantasized about being a Bond girl – but now she'd be happy just to land a small part in a 007 epic. Plus, she's talked about rocketing into space aboard Virgin Galactic's suborbital space carrier, attending a gourmet cooking school in Paris, taking NASCAR racing lessons, and owning a Kentucky Derby challenger.

"After all that," continued the source, "if Barbara still has a free afternoon, she'd like to have lunch with Pope Francis."

Cher was too busy to catch a performance of the rock musical Chaz recently appeared in

NOW that Chaz Bono has dropped more than 60 pounds, he's set a new goal – to be the first transgender actor to win an Academy Award!

"Chaz has been working with an acting teacher around the clock and is pouring his heart and soul into it," a close source told THE ENQUIRER.

Ever since his mom Cher won a Best Actress Oscar for the 1987 movie "Moonstruck," Chaz "has felt like acting is in his genes," said the source. "He really wants to make her proud."

THE FORMER "DANCING WITH the Stars" contestant is no stranger to the acting world. He previously appeared in the 1994 drama "Bar Girls" and the 2004 comedy "Fronterz." And in 2012, he landed a guest role in the hit Canadian TV show "Degrassi."

Most recently, Cher's activist son was in the cast of a rock musical for a month, but as THE ENQUIRER revealed, his 67-year-old mom was too busy to catch a performance.

Chaz, who spent years struggling with his sexual identity, has been waiting a long time to make his mark in show business.

WITH his latest sitcom getting the ax, pals fear former "Friends" star Matthew Perry could fall off the wagon, says a source.

The talented 43-year-old actor has bounced in and out of rehab while battling booze and drug demons, and the cancellation of his NBC series "Go On" is just the latest in a string of

The 5-foot-5-1/2 performer – who once tipped the scales at 250 pounds – is also working hard on his health and appearance.

It took him just five months to drop 60 pounds on a strict diet and exercise regimen.

Matthew Perry REHAB FEARS

Latest career setback sparks concern for troubled 'Friends' star disappointments. "It's been nine years since the last episode of 'Friends' aired, and Matt has been struggling to rebuild his life ever since," a pal told The ENQUIRER.

"THIS CANCELLATION HIT HIM HARD, and his friends are watching him closely. They're worried he may turn to pills and the bottle to help deal with the hurt."

A rep for Perry denied that the star is at any risk of turning to pills or booze and said his friends should not be concerned about his sobriety. Perry has been a high-profile advocate of specialized drug courts, and he recently received the Champion of Recovery Award from U.S. Drug Czar Gil Kerlikowske for "giving a voice to the millions of Americans in recovery."

Perry did rehab stints at the Hazelden treatment center in Minnesota in 1997 and Promises rehab in Malibu in 2001. He later admitted he'd been downing 20 to 30 Vicodins and "probably a quart of vodka" a day.

And in 2004, The ENQUIRER reported exclusively that Perry had slid back into boozing and popping pills after staying clean and sober for nearly two years.

Perry's most recent rehab stint came just months after his sitcom "Mr. Sunshine" was canceled in February 2011. Another series, "Studio 60 on the Sunset Strip," was dumped in 2007.

"Rejection is a hard pill to swallow, and Matt's been facing it ever since 'Friends' ended," the source said. "Now, his pals are urging him to take a break from acting and focus on himself."

revealed in early April, O.J. has become addicted to junk food that he buys in the prison commissary with money sent to him by adoring female fans.

But a published report says that the 6-foot-1 chow hound claimed he packed on the pounds by eating cans of pork and beans from the commissary – and that his bulk is “all muscle.” He told friends his bingeing is part of a bodybuilding regimen where he loads up on beans and works out like crazy to convert fat into muscle. “I gained weight eating all those beans, but just because I can’t get enough fruits and vegetables,” he reportedly told a friend. “My family’s been bugging me to stop with the beans.” The starchy prison meals are also a far cry from an ideal diet.

“The menu for breakfast is oatmeal or cream of wheat, hard-boiled eggs, hash browns and turkey sausage,” said the insider. “Lunch is four pieces of bread, turkey salami, cheese and carrots or celery. Dinner includes lasagna once a month, baked chicken twice a month, and the rest of the time it’s hot dogs, hamburgers or corn dogs. Beef stroganoff is a once-a-month meal, and french fries are a regular side dish.”

To make matters worse, contrary to what he’s telling pals, the former running back rarely exercises.

“O.J. is involved in the softball program but doesn’t play,” revealed the insider. “He’s the umpire, sitting on his butt, barking at players and eating ice cream.”

They're melting! It looks like "Real Housewives of Beverly Hills" star BRANDI GLANVILLE, 40, and pop legend CYNDI LAUPER, 59, underwent facial chemical peels to pretty themselves up. The acid-applying procedures reduce lines under the eyes and mouth, treat wrinkles caused by sun damage and lighten age spots. Brandi said she had the procedure to treat melasma, patches of dark skin caused by sun exposure. Cyndi, however, wouldn't reveal her true colors, saying she was just "suffering from a rash."

PLASTIC SURGERY SHOCKERS

Nip, tuck
yuck!

TRYING to turn back the hands of time, many Hollywood stars rush off to plastic surgeons hoping to hide their wrinkles and sagging skin with a nip here and a tuck there. For some, the results are fabulous. But others find out it's not a good thing to mess with Mother Nature. The ENQUIRER had top cosmetic surgeons analyze photos of today's hottest celebrities and they gave us their take on the good, the bad and the really ugly on those who had surgery or may need it.

by DON GENTILE
tips@nationalenquirer.com

Experts say NICOLE KIDMAN, 45, destroyed her natural good looks by overusing Botox to prevent frown lines and seemingly getting filler injections in her lips that she doesn't need. "I have no doubt that Nicole is a user of Botox, but she's doing too much," said Dr. Martin Braun, director of Vancouver Laser & Skin Care Centre in Canada. And that plumper pucker is likely due to injections of Restylane, added Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Griffin.

Let's face it, JANET JACKSON has lost that natural beauty she had years ago. The 46-year-old singer looked like a fragile China doll when she attended a recent fashion show in Milan. "Her cheeks protrude, resembling two golf balls," said Dr. Anthony Youn, a Michigan-based board-certified plastic surgeon. "I suspect she's undergone cheek implants. And her forehead is excessively smooth—consistent with overdone Botox injections. It's a shame."

MELANIE GRIFFITH, 55, has one of Hollywood's freakiest faces. Although she's copped only to a breast-lift and collagen lip injections, her nose is the only part of her face that doesn't appear altered, says Dr. Brian Glatt, a plastic surgeon from Morristown, N.J. "I believe she's had both her upper and lower eyelids done as well as a brow-lift and a chin implant – which appears to be too wide."

NOW

THEN

NOW

Jaws dropped when LIZA MINNELLI, 67, showed up at a Big Apple event on April 10 with her puss stretched tighter than a drum. While Liza denies any surgery, Dr. Matthew Schulman, a New York board-certified plastic surgeon, said the "Cabaret" star looks like she's "had a total facial rejuvenation, likely incorporating a face-lift, brow-lift and eyelid surgery. She may have also had skin resurfacing with a chemical peel. I also suspect she's had Botox injections to smooth out her forehead. I think she looks unnatural."

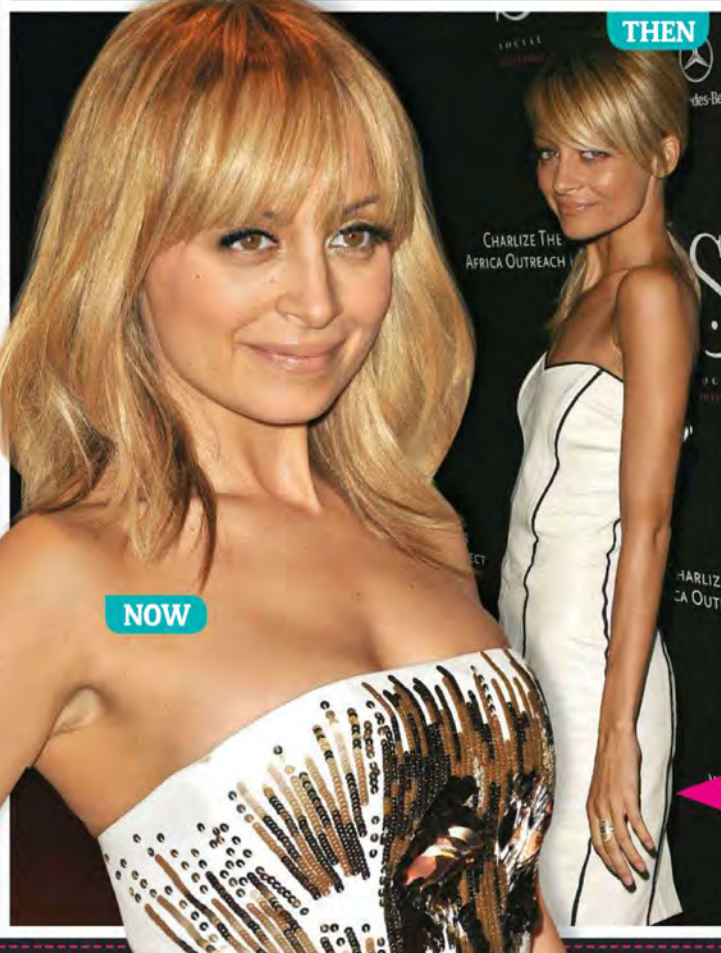

THEN

As The ENQUIRER reported, KRIS JENNER forked out $250,000 over the years on plastic surgery procedures. Kris even filmed one of her face-lifts in 2011 for a segment on "Keeping Up with the Kardashians," and the results were fabulous. It looks like Kris, 57, has had more facial fixes and is waiting for the puffiness to go down to a sculpted look, say experts. Dr. Richard Chaffoo, a board-certified plastic surgeon from La Jolla, Calif., also believes Kris underwent "a blepharoplasty, as her eyes appear more open and deep-set."

MORE PLASTIC SURGERY SHOCKERS >>

Hair-raising sight! "Two and a Half Men" star HOLLAND TAYLOR is battling Father Time at age 70. The actress "probably had a brow-lift, as it appears higher (than it did when she was younger)," said Dr. Paul Carniol. "It also seems like she had a deep chemical peel around her mouth with associated lightening and smoothing of her skin." We say Holland should have gone the "aging gracefully" route.

THEN

It's time for MADONNA to stop reinventing herself. The 54-year-old superstar, who has denied having plastic surgery, was a frightful sight at a recent New York fundraising event. Dr. Chaffoo believes that the Material Girl had a face-lift that made her face look "pulled" and her neckline "somewhat irregular. Also, her forehead and eye area look like there are no lines, which happens with Botox. And her lips look distorted, which can occur with too much filler." Madonna, you're trying too hard and it's not working.

Boob-a-licious! NICOLE RICHIE has given hubby/rocker Joel Madden more of her to love. The 31-year-old "Simple Life" star is sporting a much-larger pair of breasts these days, and although Nicole's not admitting it, Dr. Youn believes that she "appears to have enhanced her breasts with implants," going from an A to a C. "Her plastic surgeon did a classy job," he noted.

PINK

It's time to get some guts and visit a plastic surgeon for "Millionaire Matchmaker" PATTI STANGER, 51, and singers PINK, 33, and DEBBIE GIBSON, 42. They all "have loose skin on their tummies," said Dr. Robert Kratschmer, a Houston-based board-certified plastic surgeon. "I would recommend an abdominoplasty (tummy tuck). This will remove the excess skin as well as some of the fat, and tighten muscles too." Another option, says Dr. Kratschmer, is a treatment with "a directional fiber optic laser, such as the Cellulaze system. It can shrink down skin without much downtime." If the ladies don't want to have work done, there's always the option of one-piece bathing suits and grown-up tops that cover their bellies.

NOW

NICOLE "SNOOKI" POLIZZI has gone from pudgy bimchette to beautiful mom, thanks to a 42-pound weight loss following the birth of her child last August, dental veneers and teeth-whitening. Although rumors persist that the "Jersey Shore" star, 25, has had a face-lift or Botox treatments to smooth out her face, during her appearance on the "Today" show Snooki told Matt Lauer she's thinking of getting work done AFTER she's finished having babies.

MORE PLASTIC SURGERY SHOCKERS >>

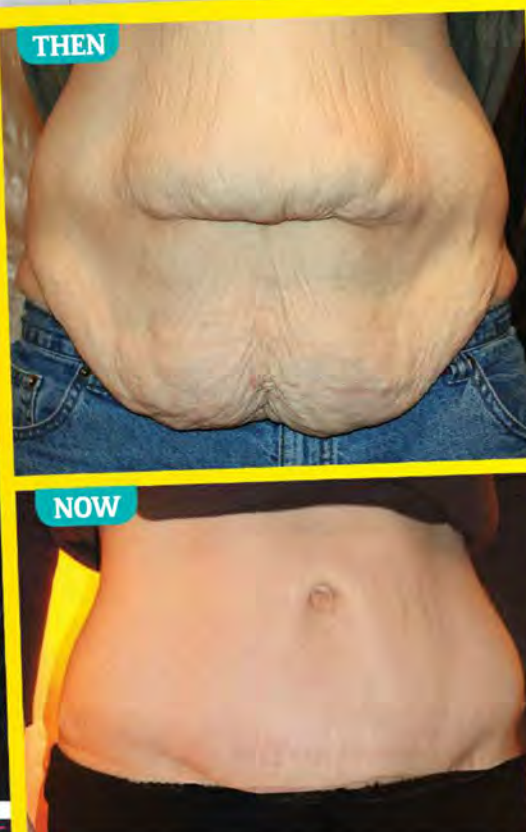

Looking more like Frankenstein's bride than a top British model, ALICIA DOUVALL was a frightful sight recently on a London street. But the 34-year-old single mom, an admitted plastic surgery addict, was not having something done, she was having something undone. "I have had problems with my implants, so I had all of the implants in my nose, cheek and eyes removed," she said. Alicia, who was once engaged to basketball oddball Dennis Rodman, adds that she's now sworn off cosmetic surgery. She first went under the knife at 17 and since then has had six nose jobs, 11 procedures on the skin around her eyes, cheek and butt implants, and a face-lift.

DEMI MOORE, 50, might want to schedule another visit to her plastic surgeon. The actress wasn't so wrinkle-free at a Hollywood theater event in April. Sources say that Demi regularly rejuvenated her "Charlie's Angels" looks with laser and Botox treatments. Dr. Youn says such treatments "to erase frown and laugh lines cost about $1,000 and must be done three times a year."

It's hard to recognize MARY TYLER MOORE these days. The 76-year-old sitcom legend looks like she's overdoing it when it comes to cosmetic surgery, according to Dr. Youn. "Mary's eyelids are excessively open, consistent with aggressive eyelid-lifts. Her face and neck look like they've been pulled tight, a likely consequence of face, neck and cheek-lifts. She also appears to have undergone a brow-lift combined with Botox injections. She looks permanently surprised." His advice: Avoid more surgery.

A real bellyful! SAMANTHA BROOMFIELD, 30, ballooned up to 364 pounds before she dropped a staggering 210 of them. There was just one problem. Her skin became so loose she looked like she had a second stomach. Her daughters called her "mummy two tummies." Exercise didn't help, so Samantha and husband Tony, of Essex, England, petitioned Britain's National Health Service, and the bureaucrats OK'd the super-tummy tuck procedure. Today, she's a more slender 154 pounds with a 34F chest and wears size 12. Daughters Jaydee, and Toni-Anne, 6, enjoy more – even though there's less of her!

PLASTIC SURGERY SHOCKERS

NIP, TUCK!

Fuggedaboutit! "Mob Wives" star ANGELA "BIG ANG" RAIOLA is definitely not in lip-sync with her natural looks. The busty reality star, 52, admits she's obsessed with plastic surgery, saying: "I had a tummy tuck, liposuction, my lips injected and my breasts done three times...I think I am sexy." But sexy is not the word to describe her, says Dr. Chaffoo, who thinks Big Ang just looks "scary" and "her lips are comical."

THEN

"Oh God, I don't know if I ever really felt beautiful," PAMELA ANDERSON revealed in an interview. The 45-year-old "Baywatch" babe, who reportedly had a nose job and repeated Botox treatments throughout the years, had a more chiseled, toned-down look as she headed for dinner in Manhattan recently and said: "I feel different from how I did in my 'Playboy' days." Dr. Youn believes Pam has stopped Botox and lip enhancement treatments. There's no shame in showing your age Pam.

NOW

COURTENEY COX, 48, confesses to using Botox boosters. "Compared to most, I use it very sparingly," the "Cougar Town" star insists. But "one time I overdid it," she says, adding that she felt her face had frozen. "I felt trapped in my own skin. I'm an actor; I've got to be able to move my face!" But it looks like her face wasn't moving in our recent photo of the actress.

LUCK!

A visit to a plastic surgeon would do wonders for SARAH JESSICA PARKER, according to Dr. Chaffoo. The 48-year-old "Sex and the City" star "has some sagging of her face and neck skin and has a number of lines in her forehead and around her eyes that would be diminished had she used Botox," he said. "Sarah Jessica is at the point where a conservative face-lift would be very effective at reversing her facial aging."

THEN

"Queen Bee" rapper LIL' KIM, 37, seems to have "undergone significant alteration of her face, and not for the better," said Dr. Boris Ackerman, a board-certified plastic surgeon in Newport Beach, Calif. "Her facial features – like her cheeks and especially her jawline – are essentially unrecognizable. Most likely she had semi-permanent filler placed in those areas."

NOW

NOW

KATIE COURIC, 56, looked haggard last August as she stepped out for lunch in Manhattan. But the newswoman was fresh-faced recently at a Four Seasons party. Dr. Chaffoo believes the "Katie" host had "a brow-lift, face-lift and a blepharoplasty. The latter is usually performed through incisions made along the natural skin lines of the eyelids. This allows removal of lower eyelid fat without a visible scar. Katie's eyes are more open and deep-set. Her neck and jawline appear more youthful and smooth."

Andrew
Morton

In an ENQUIRER world exclusive, Angelina Jolie's biographer Andrew Morton goes behind the scenes to reveal the untold story about her brave decision. The English journalist and writer, who also penned best-selling biographies on Princess Diana and Tom Cruise, published his book "Angelina: An Unauthorized Biography" for St. Martin's Press in 2010. Here's his report:

BRAVE actress Angelina Jolie's dramatic decision to undergo a double mastectomy was sparked by her beloved aunt's battle with breast cancer!

Sources tell The ENQUIRER that Angelina secretly agonized over the decision for nearly 13 years, and finally chose to go under the knife after the younger sister of her mother Marcheline – who succumbed to ovarian cancer at age 56 – was stricken with breast cancer when it returned for a second time.

The Oscar-winning actress and mother of six, 37, hesitated to have the drastic surgery, even though her mother, grandmother and great-grandmother all died of cancer at a young age, insiders say.

Partner Brad has been Angie's rock through her ordeal

But when Angelina learned that her aunt Debra Martin, a 61-year-old mother of two from Escondido, Calif., was battling stage 4 breast cancer, she decided to go ahead with the operation, sources say.

Speaking publicly for the first time about Angie's life-changing decision, Debra said: "I believe this was the right thing to do. I think it has reduced her chances of getting breast cancer dramatically. If I had informed myself better before I got breast cancer, I would have made the same decision."

Debra had tried to beat the family curse after Angie's mother was diagnosed with ovarian cancer in 2000. Like Marcheline, Debra tested positive for the faulty BRCA1 gene, a marker for increased risk of both breast and ovarian cancer, and decided to have her ovaries removed.

Despite that, she was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2004. Surgeons performed a lumpectomy, and Debra seemed to have beaten the Big C.

BUT LAST YEAR THE DISEASE returned with a vengeance. By January, Debra had wasted away to just 96 pounds.

Her condition has since stabilized, but her husband Ron spends hours on the phone each day trying to find a clinical trial that will accept her and provide cutting-edge treatment to beat the body-ravaging scourge. Angie has urged the couple to use her name to open doors, but they've still had no success.

"We have been fighting a difficult battle ever since Debra's breast cancer returned," said her husband Ron. "We are struggling to find a clinical trial we can participate in."

It was Debra's gutsy decision to undergo the preventative ovarian surgery that inspired Angelina, said her mother's longtime partner Bill Day, who lived with Marcheline for 11 years.

"Debra is the unsung heroine of this story because she was the first woman in the Bertrand family to attempt preventative surgery," said documentary filmmaker Day.

"She has been a shining example to Angelina."

The Oscar-winning actress stunned the world when she announced that she underwent a double mastectomy after learning she carried the faulty BRCA1 gene. But sources say Angelina has lived most of her life with the knowledge that killer cancer stalks her family.

The disease claimed her great-grandmother Jean in 1962. Her grandmother Lois died of ovarian cancer at 45 in November 1972.

Lois' death left her daughter Marcheline devastated, said a source.

"Marcheline idolized her mother," recalled a longtime family friend. "She grieved long and she grieved hard."

Marcheline's father Roland also lost his life to cancer at 61 in 1985. Two years after Marcheline's death in 2007, her younger brother Raleigh succumbed to cancer at age 54.

BUT THE TRUE IMPACT OF THE KILLER disease hit home for Angelina with her mother's ovarian cancer diagnosis in 2000, sources say.

Marcheline got sick," said a close family friend.

"It's different 'hearing' about a grandmother and great-grandmother that she never met as opposed to going through the experience with your mother. That's probably when it became real for her and she realized it could happen to her."

And in a heartfelt family tribute that only Angelina can provide, there's word she will play her late mother in a new movie biopic. The funding is said to be coming from her loving partner Brad's Plan B production company.

The movie could reportedly go into production next year, and is sure to be her greatest role ever.

ZOE SALDANA'S BABY DILEMMA

'Trek' beauty can't decide whether to raise a kid with man or woman

"STAR Trek Into Darkness" beauty Zoe Saldana may be beaming herself into a red-hot love triangle... with a man AND a woman!

Even though Zoe set her phasers to stun fans with the admission that she might end up raising her kids with a WOMAN, the willowy "Avatar" actress was said to be getting hot and heavy with hunky Italian artist Marco Perego.

In fact, the pair was recently spotted getting cozy at the "Star Trek Into Darkness" premiere after-party in L.A.

"Zoe and Marco are old friends, but they've recently started taking their relationship to the next level," a source told The ENQUIRER.

As we previously reported, "Hangover" hunk Bradley Cooper dumped Zoe in March of last year because she clashed with his mom.

Now, Zoe, who plays communications officer Uhura

The "Avatar" beauty has taken her relationship with Italian artist Marco Perego to the next level in the latest "Star Trek" flick, said she's had it with actors – at least for now.

"Been there, done that, got the T-shirt," she told a magazine reporter.

No stranger to opening up about her personal life, Saldana, 34, has confirmed that she worships men. But she also says in the magazine that she is open to finding love wherever it may be.

"[I MIGHT] END UP WITH A woman raising my children," said Zoe, who split from her longtime entrepreneur fiancé Keith Britton in 2011. "That's how androgynous I am."

As the shock waves from that statement reverberated around Hollywood, Zoe clarified what she meant to "Today" show host Savannah Guthrie.

"My sexual preference will be my prerogative and my right," she explained. "As of now, I've been attracted to the male species. I don't know if that will continue."

THINGS REALLY got hot under the collar for Zachary Quinto in his role as Spock on the set of "Star Trek Into Darkness."

The actor put on a special protective heat suit to film a fiery volcano scene, but it failed to protect him from the scorching heat.

Now the 36-year-old star is sporting an angry red scar on the back of his neck.

As he prepared for the scene, Zachary remembers thinking, "This is going to be great!"

But it was no fun for him after a strip of his flesh was exposed to the heat and he couldn't relay the problem to director J.J. Abrams because the microphone in his helmet was busted.

"MY NECK SKIN GOT CAUGHT IN BETWEEN the helmet (and my shoulder)," recalled Zachary, who thrashed around in the red-hot simulated volcano while Abrams and the rest of the crew remained safely out of range of the heat.

"I didn't know how serious it was," continued Zachary. "I didn't know what was happening."

But once the shot was completed and Zachary took off his helmet, the crew noticed that a patch of skin on his neck was singed so badly it had puckered into a raised welt.

Abrams told him: "It looked like there was a caterpillar on your neck!"

Fortunately, the actor's significant other, "Glee" star Jonathan Groff, was able to comfort him.

Zachary, who played super-powered villain Sylar on the TV hit "Heroes," later had another source of comfort.

The sci-fi adventure rocketed to No.1 at the box office in its first weekend, raking in a whopping $70.6 million.

APPETITE FOR MURDER

Bloodthirsty husband GOES FOR BURGER AFTER STABBING WIFE TO DEATH

AFTER a psycho ex-con brutally stabbed his wife to death with a knife, he walked into a Burger King – and calmly ordered a double cheeseburger, say authorities.

In a bid to dodge a first-degree murder conviction, Michael Kenny's lawyer argued that the fiend slashed his beautician wife Denise to death in a fit of jealousy over some topless photos he claimed she intended to send to her ex-husband.

"ALL THOSE STAB WOUNDS, ALL THAT blood – this was the clearest case of a passion killing I've ever seen," defense attorney Kevin Canfield told a jury in New York City.

But the prosecutor maintained it was a clear case of coldhearted, premeditated murder.

"He's not wandering around the city, aimlessly, saying: 'Oh, my God, what have I done?'" noted Linda Ford, an assistant district attorney in the New York County District Attorney's Office.

"I know people who go through a breakup, not even a bad breakup, and they can't eat for a week. This guy goes to a Burger King and orders a double cheeseburger!"

Jurors agreed, and on March 8 found the 44-year-old brute guilty of intentionally killing his estranged wife Denise, 40.

Denise, a native of the Caribbean island of Trinidad, married 6-foot-1, 230-pound

VICTIM

According to Kenny, Denise sent him topless photos of herself that she meant to send to her ex-husband

Kenny in 2009. But she soon decided that she didn't want to stay married to the creep, who'd served time for trying to kill his first wife in 1994 and has a rap sheet stretching back 22 years.

In a rage over the prospect of being spurned, Kenny texted her: "Just remember what I tell you. If you ever leave me, the things I can do to you."

On Jan. 8, 2011, Kenny was jailed for 60 days for choking and assaulting Denise. On March 11, just days after his release and furious over the alleged topless photos that he said she sent to him by mistake, he charged into Denise's workplace at New York City's D'Galina's Center Salon armed with a nine-inch knife.

Denise led Kenny upstairs to a second floor bathroom to talk. Minutes later, she let out a blood-curdling scream and could be heard crying, "No! No! No!"

Authorities say Kenny stabbed her seven times in the chest, leg, hand and forearm, striking her with such force that his knife broke into three pieces.

Then he came downstairs, grabbed $800 from the cash register and walked out, leaving a trail of bloody footprints behind.

"He had crazy eyes," said salon owner Leo Pinkhasov, who charged upstairs and found Denise covered in blood.

SHE WAS RUSHED TO A HOSPITAL but died later that day. She's survived by two sons – Davis Ramkisson, 23, and Darion, 16 – from her previous marriage.

"She did everything to give us a better life," said her distraught elder son Davis.

On March 28, 2013, Kenny was sentenced to 25 years to life in prison.

"I want this man to live and suffer," said Davis. "I want him to live until he's 100, and I want his mind and his conscience to eat away at him slowly."

ENQUIRER SCOOPED 'EM ALL

with Amy's 'Caveman'

OH, c'mon, "People"! On May 10, the folks at that OTHER magazine finally confirmed what ENQUIRER readers have known for weeks – that "Parks and Recreation" cutie Amy Poehler is dating one of her show's guest stars, Nick Kroll.

In our April 22 issue, we reported that the perky comedian had fallen for Nick, star of the 2007 sitcom "Cavemen," which was based on the popular GEICO insurance ads.

ON "PARKS AND REC," THE COMIC plays a radio shock-jock on a morning show in fictional Pawnee, Ind.

"Nick's character is an insufferable idiot who's always making dumb jokes," said a source. "But to Amy, Nick's been a rock of support during her split from (estranged husband) Will Arnett, and he's made her laugh when she really needed cheering up."

The former "SNL" star separated from Will in September 2012 after nine years of marriage. Once again,

The ENQUIRER broke the news about Amy and Nick back in our April 22 issue

IN a desperate bid to save her rocky marriage, Sharon Osbourne has agreed to take back her madman husband Ozzy – but ONLY if the aging rocker submits to random drug and alcohol testing. The couple, who've been married for more than three decades, started living apart after Ozzy suffered a booze and drug relapse. When Sharon issued her ultimatum for him to either agree to the random testing or take a hike, a contrite Ozzy immediately said yes.

"Ozzy will do anything Sharon asks as long as she'll take him back," said a source. "He can't bear to live without her."

"But she's warned him, no more sneaking around behind her back doing drugs or drinking."

"ANY SLIP-UPS AND SHE'S OUT OF there. And to make sure he stays on the straight and narrow, he's agreed that Sharon can give him random drug and alcohol tests."

As The ENQUIRER recently

Ozzy rented this huge estate while he and Sharon were separated reported, Sharon, 60, walked out on her 31-year marriage to the heavy metal rocker because she was terrified he was killing himself with his out-of-control substance abuse.

On April 15, the 64-year-old Black Sabbath frontman posted on Facebook that he'd suffered an 18-month relapse after 10 years of clean living. At the time of his status update, a remorseful Ozzy claimed that he'd been sober again for six weeks.

"I was in a very dark place and was an a to the people I love most, my family," he wrote.

He also went on to insist that he and Sharon were not planning to divorce and that he was "just trying to be a better person."

DURING THE RELAPSE, "OZZY WAS up to his old ways, gobbling down a bunch of pills and then chasing them with bottles of booze, beer, brandy – you name it" as he battled depression over bandmate Tony Iommi's battle against cancer and son Jack's diagnosis with multiple sclerosis, said a source.

At the time of Ozzy's Facebook mea culpa, he and Sharon had already been living apart for more than a month – and she was spotted out without her wedding ring.

"Sharon told Ozzy that it's all well and good for him to be sober for a

Sharon stayed at this hotel before sharing a new mansion with Ozzy month and a half, but she wouldn't go back to him until he's on the wagon for at least three months," said the source. And on "The Talk," Sharon made it clear that if Ozzy didn't stay sober, he'd be taken to the hospital "to have my foot removed from his ass!"

Now, it appears the wedding ring is back on – and so is the marriage.

The two were recently spotted on the red carpet at an event and having a cozy lunch at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Meanwhile, assistants were seen moving clothes and boxes from Ozzy's rented Beverly Hills mansion into Sharon's nearby digs.

"Sharon was blindsided by Ozzy's relapse," added the source. "Now, she's not taking any chances."

A Life Without 'Belly Fat'

How One Woman Overcomes Tragedy and Creates the Life She's Always Wanted – By Tiffany Strobel*

Mindy DeForest's wake-up call about her weight problem was heartbreaking and profound: her sister died of colon cancer. "My sister was overweight, and I knew that being overweight myself put me more at risk for all sorts of health issues," she says. "I knew something had to change."

At 208 pounds, Mindy was the heaviest she'd ever been. Even having children hadn't caused her to gain so much weight, but the stress of caring for and eventually losing her sister, as well as being in an unhappy marriage, had caused her weight to balloon. "I'm a total stress eater," she says. "I kept turning to food for emotional reasons, and I was really putting on weight."

Like most people, Mindy had tried dieting in the past. Over the course of ten years she tried Weight Watchers, Body for Life, ephedra... pretty much everything. But unfortunately, nothing was working for her.

Mindy decided to try losing weight one more time, so she began working with a personal trainer. It didn't take long before her trainer realized that a big part of her weight-gain issues revolved around stress eating, so he recommended she try a product called Relacore®.

"He told me it was a 'belly fat' pill that could help me feel less stressed, give me energy, and improve my mood," Mindy says. She admits she was pessimistic after having tried so many products that hadn't worked in the past, but says, "My trainer really believed in it, so I agreed to give it a try."

It didn't take long before Mindy was convinced of Relacore's effectiveness. "I really noticed a difference in my mood. I was in the process of getting divorced and was worried I'd suffer from depression, but Relacore made a huge difference for me. I never felt down. I stopped my 'nervous' eating. And I could really tell from my mood when I missed a day, so I knew it was doing something for me."

Before long, the inches started dropping off, and Mindy's entire life began to change. "My self-esteem went through the roof. I started getting job offers, and I felt like for the first time in years, people were paying attention to me. When I was overweight it was like I just blended into the background, but then I started getting thin until her trainer recommended a second product: Zantrex®-3 High Energy Fat Burner. "He told me it could help me get past my plateau and start losing again," Mindy says, "and I'd had so much success with Relacore that I didn't hesitate to try it."

Mindy added Zantrex to her Relacore/diet and exercise regimen, and it gave her the extra boost she needed to blow through her plateau and start dropping even more weight.

"With help from Relacore and Zantrex, I've lost 55 pounds, and I'm still going. I haven't been this thin since my twenties. I just bought a new skirt, and when I was trying it on it felt so amazing to keep telling the store clerk to bring me a smaller size. I ended up buying a size 2. It was awesome. I couldn't believe it."

But for Mindy, the greatest accomplishment isn't being able to fit into a size 2. "It's knowing that I really had the power to change my life. When I was overweight, I was miserable. But now everyone around me can see the difference losing weight has made not just in my physical appearance, but in everything. I have energy, I'm positive, I'm outgoing. My whole outlook on life has changed. I'm just so happy."

and all of a sudden people were noticing me." But then Mindy hit the dreaded "weight-loss plateau" and almost gave up on ever reaching her goal...

Heard about "Combo-Pilling"?

The highly controversial practice of Combo-Pilling is truly an underground phenomenon. Odds are, if you know someone who's losing lots of weight, and losing it fast, you probably know someone who's Combo-Pilling... like Mindy D. Why? Because it allows people to attack multiple facets of weight loss – like dropping fat, overcoming stress eating, and having enough energy to work out – all at the same time. According to the Internet, the most popular Combo-Pilling duo is Zantrex and Relacore. You can find them both at Wal-Mart, Walgreens, Rite-Aid, CVS, and GNC, or order them separately from their respective manufacturers, Zantrex-3 at Zantrex3.com (1-800-417-0490) Relacore at Relacore.com (1-800-506-3932) or at TryComboPilling.com. FUN MIND SHARPENER ★ Slowing mental decline after age 50 might be as easy as playing a video game.

A University of Iowa study involving hundreds of healthy adults over 50 involved playing Double Decision, a fast-paced computer game designed to improve mental processing skills.

Incredibly, those in the game-playing group were found to have gained and retained a substantial improvement in brain function, including memory skills and the speed of mental processing.

"It's fairly easy, and anyone can get the training game and play it," says Fredric Wolinsky, lead researcher and professor at the university.

The game is produced by Posit Science and can be found online.

Do your meds affect SURGERY?

★ Some people taking popular antidepressants around the time of surgery are at higher risk for complications, according to new data.

In a massive study involving 375 U.S. hospitals, experts found that surgical patients taking a class of antidepressants known as SSRIs were more likely to suffer bleeding, hospital readmission and even death.

"With this huge data set, we feel confident in saying that SSRIs are associated with about a 10 percent increased risk for these adverse outcomes," says Dr. Andrew D. Auerbach, professor of medicine at the University of California, San Francisco.

★ A renowned expert in medicinal plants claims he's found the ideal herb to combat aging.

The many benefits of Rhodiola rosea (golden root) are supported by hundreds of published studies, says Chris Kilham, a regular guest on the "The Dr. Oz Show" and host of FOX News' "Medicine Hunter."

"Rhodiola helps to bolster energy, endurance and stamina, improve memory and clarity of thought, supports the immune system and helps to banish the blues," declares Kilham.

The herb, which grows in China and Siberia and is sold in extract form, will give you a lift, adds the researcher, but it is not a stimulant and will not adversely affect heart rate or blood pressure.

SUPER HERB

INHERITED JUNK FOOD

★ Warning! Women who regularly eat junk food during pregnancy and while breastfeeding could be paving the way for their babies to be junk-food addicts, according to a lab study.

These kids frequently end up consuming more fat and sugar than other children. And to make matters worse, this addiction could lead to long-term health risks like obesity. The bottom line: These youngsters are being put in a position that could make it more difficult for them to maintain a healthy weight.

★ Following recent media stories about the hazards of low vitamin D levels, new research shows that higher than recommended doses offer no benefit – and may actually be harmful. "Healthy people have been popping these pills, but they should not continue taking vitamin D supplements unchecked," cautions Dr. Muhammad Amer, an assistant professor at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Excessive doses at some point, he says, are "at best a waste of money." But some people – including seniors, postmenopausal women and those with kidney disease – may need to take the supplement. Doctors can tell if you need it with a simple blood test.

Babies take a back seat to their status-obsessed moms in this outrageously excessive new reality series about Emily, Nicole N., Miranda, Nicole B., Meredith and Marci — six very well-coiffed and very competitive Atlanta mothers. From their kids' extravagant, over-the-top birthday parties to stylish outfits and anything else that would make another mom jealous, these tough ladies are constantly competing to be the prettiest, richest and best parent in Atlanta. Tonight, blonde Barbie mom Emily and her look-alike best friend Nicole N. throw a get-together where Emily's nemesis, "Southern Belle" Miranda, gets attacked by Nicole N.'s Shih Tzu dog, Sommer, as the mommy wars begin.

Aaron Tveit and
Daniel Sunjata

Tonight, FBI rookie Mike Warren (Aaron Tveit) enters Graceland and is thrown into a gritty surf-and-turf world where any day could be his last. Smoothly scripted and excellently acted by a first-rate and very hot ensemble cast, "Graceland" is THE summer destination for crime drama fans.

Dwayne
Johnson

The Hero (New Show!)

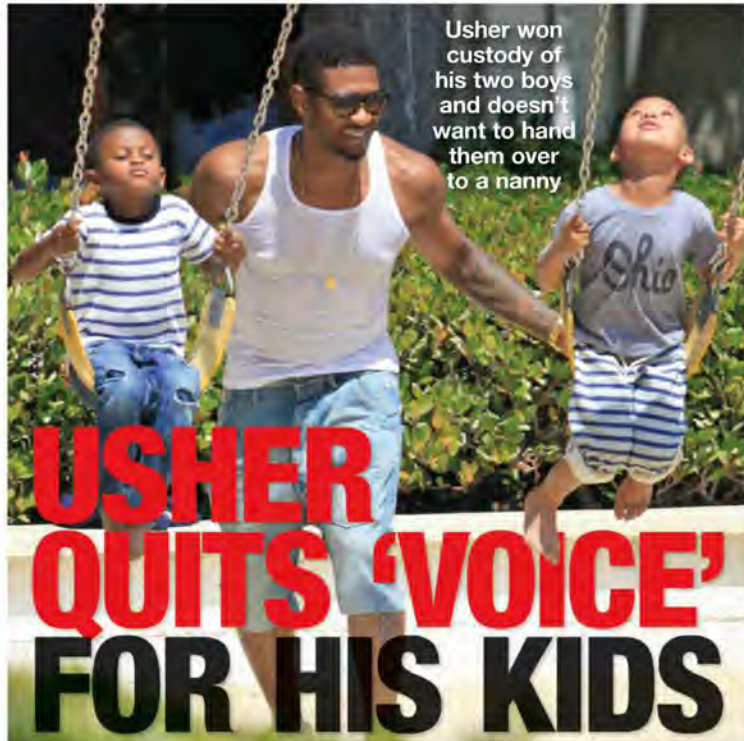

Thursday, June 6, 8 p.m. ET, TNT

Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson literally rocks the worlds of nine diverse individuals — including a cop, trauma surgeon and weepy suburban mom — in this exhilarating, inspiring and ingenious social experiment disguised as an action-hero competition series. Tempted every step of the way with big money bribes to turn on their teammates, these ordinary people will rise to extraordinary heights, both literally and emotionally. With America judging their every move and moral decision, they quickly learn that being a hero is not about what stunts you can do but what kind of person you are in this thrill-ride of a reality series that will leave you breathless.

Graceland (New Show!)

Thursday, June 6, 10 p.m. ET, USA Network

"Baywatch" meets "The Wire" in this sensational new drama, based on a true story about a Southern California beachfront mansion seized from an Elvis Presley-obsessed drug lord and turned into an undercover residence for DEA, FBI and Customs agents.

Usher won custody of his two boys and doesn't want to hand them over to a nanny

USHER QUILTS 'VOICE' FOR HIS KIDS

POPULAR "Voice" coach Usher is leaving his swivel chair to focus on his kids, say sources.

The decision comes as the 34-year-old chart-topper is facing a lawsuit by his children's former nanny, Cecilia Duncan, who claims she was unjustly fired when she asked to be paid overtime to care for his two sons, Usher V, 5, and Naviyd, 4.

The lawsuit comes just months after Usher won primary custody of the boys following a three-year court battle with his ex-wife, Tameka Foster — and he's had enough, says a friend.

"He's at the point where he doesn't trust anyone to take care of his boys," the friend continued. "Besides, he didn't fight so hard for custody just to hand them over to a nanny."

Veteran coach Blake Shelton and Adam Levine have tried to convince Usher to stay.

"Blake told him that stars are always targets for people who think they can treat celebrities like cash registers," said another source. "But Usher is really steamed about this lawsuit. He believes he's always been very generous to people who work for him."

Embattled singer IGNORES PLEAS TO STAY

Usher isn't the only exiting judge. Shakira — mother of a baby boy — announced she won't be returning, while Christina Aguilera has inked a deal to come back for Season 5.

Blake Shelton doesn't want
Usher to leave the show

Meanwhile, Usher is slated to play boxer Sugar Ray Leonard in a new movie filming this fall, but his focus remains on his young sons.

The friend added: "If he has to leave 'The Voice' to free up more time to be with his kids, he's ready to do it."

Poor little rich girl

Need proof that money doesn't buy happiness? Look at the picture of Demi Moore and Bruce Willis' daughter Tallulah, who's huddled up to a dumpster and puffing on a "suspicious-looking cigarette" (The Week In Pictures, April 29). My heart aches for the young lady.

– Lane L., Stuart, Fla.

Praying for James

I was saddened to see James Garner wheelchair-ridden (James Garner's Sad Last Days, April 29). This man is certainly one of the most respected actors of both TV and films. I'm sure I can speak for many of his fans: We are praying for a miracle recovery.

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

In a bizarre mystery, legendary Hollywood beauty Angie Dickinson claims a secret enemy is impersonating her on the Internet and says she's outraged over the humiliating hoax.

The former "Police Woman" star, 81, told The ENQUIRER in an exclusive interview that the phony Facebook page makes her look lost and despondent.

"I'M IN A FURY over this," Angie fumed. "I am NOT on Facebook and I am NOT depressed. We tried to stop this a year ago. It's someone pretending to be me."

Angie, once a member of Frank Sinatra's famed Rat Pack, says she's the latest victim of Internet pirates who create fake pages of real people on social media websites.

But asked by The ENQUIRER why she hasn't gone to authorities, Angie didn't have an answer – and friends believe the posts could be cries for help from the aging actress.

One weird post that raised eyebrows was: "When we get drunk, we fall asleep. When we fall asleep, we commit no sin. When we commit no sin, we go to heaven. So, let's all get drunk, and go to heaven!"

A pal told The ENQUIRER: "If this is a fraud, Angie needs to shut it down. It makes her look like a nut with a drinking problem who's suffering from depression."

ODDLY, ANGIE seems more concerned over misspellings and bad grammar in some of the posts.

"My parents published a newspaper," she told The ENQUIRER. "My mother was a copy reader. I was taught to spell."

She adds that her pal Ol' Blue Eyes would know what to do with the Internet imposter.

"Frank would break her legs!"

Francis Albert Sinatra. Ol' Blue Eyes. Chairman of the Board. Call him what you will, but there's no doubt that Sinatra's extraordinary voice elevated popular songs into an art form. And his antics off-stage were just as legendary. A hard-drinking swinger, he had his pick of women and a fiercely loyal "Rat Pack" who followed him everywhere. But when he died on May 14, 1998, many of his most sensational secrets were buried with him – until now. In this special report from the editors of The National ENQUIRER, we reveal the shocking truth about his gangland ties, the string of heartbroken – and pregnant – lovers he left in his wake, and the dark, bullying side he hid from the world.

DAIRY FARMER SAVES LIVES

– from beyond the grave

Bland Hardison's debilitating arthritis didn't stop him from making trips to the Muhlenberg Humane Society in Kentucky

He leaves MEGABUCK$ TO ANIMAL SHELTERS in his will

A FEW weeks back, checks for $1,432 began arriving at animal shelters in every one of Kentucky's 120 counties.

A short note accompanied the money, explaining that the donations were a gift from Bland Hardison, a dairy farmer with a heart of gold.

The mild-mannered Kentuckian died in 2008 at 86 and had set aside in his will a million dollars for his state's humane societies and other charities, his widow Jonell explained.

The estate took years to settle and now everyone is learning what his devoted wife knew all along.

"He was a gentle man, considerate and a real animal lover," Jonell told The ENQUIRER. "And I do miss him."

Near the end of his life, Bland told Jonell what he planned to do with his money and she was all for it.

"He didn't have any heirs and was an only child," said Jonell, 80. "I told him to use his money like he wanted. I had plenty to carry me through. He thought giving the money to the animal shelters would be a nice gesture."

The spread Bland owned in Muhlenberg County, Ky., was always a haven for dozens of stray cats, which the friendly farmer made sure were cared for and well-fed.

There were always dogs around too, said Jonell, with her husband's favorites being two Pomeranians named Nicholas and Rusty.

IN THE LAST YEARS OF HIS LIFE, BLAND SUFFERED from debilitating arthritis. But that didn't stop him from making trips to the local animal shelter, delivering huge bags of dog food for the abandoned animals.

"Mr. Hardison probably started coming to the shelter six years ago," said the Muhlenberg Humane Society's Monte Denny. "He was an elderly gentleman and couldn't lift the big bags of dog food he'd bring in. He would honk the horn and one of the staff would help him unload the vehicle. He was really faithful to do that."

The shelter donations were a much-needed windfall for the Kentucky facilities, which often struggle with small budgets.

Jonell says her husband Bland was a gentle man, considerate and a real animal lover

Rusty Newton, who runs Shelby County's animal shelter, said the money from Hardison would be used to buy new equipment, such as carriers to transport animals for veterinarian visits.

"I was surprised, but at the same time we were thrilled that someone would care enough to leave money for all the shelters," said Newton.

Bland, whose dad, Raymond, was a Methodist minister and mom, Dura, an accomplished musician, is laid to rest next to his parents at Wiley's Chapel Cemetery in Lewisburg, Ky.

And Jonell revealed that her late husband decided that he'd also use his wealth to make sure his fellow deceased Kentuckians could rest in comfort – by leaving $2,590 to each of 235 cemeteries around Kentucky for maintenance and upkeep.

"He was a good man," said Jonell.
